9 Plaintiffs,

ORDER

10 v.

11 AVISION YOUNG (CANADA), INC., et al,

12 Defendants.
13

14 I. INTRODUCTION

15 Before the Court is Defendants' Motion to Dismiss the Amended Complaint. ECF No. 66.
16 For the reasons stated below, the Motion is granted in part and denied in part.
17

18 II. BACKGROUND

19 The original Complaint was filed in state court on February 27, 2015. ECF No. 1.
20 The case was removed on March 23, 2015. ECF No. 1. The Court denied Plaintiff's Motion to 21 Remand on March 31, 2016, and issued the corresponding written order on July 7, 2016. ECF Nos.
22 45, 59. The First Amended Complaint was filed on August 8, 2016. ECF No. 65. The instant 23 Motion to Dismiss was filed on October 7, 2016. ECF No. 66. The Response was filed on 24 December 13, 2016 and the Reply on January 12, 2016. ECF Nos. 72, 73. In the Response and at 25 the hearing Plaintiffs withdrew claims 10, 11, and 13, for breach of fiduciary duty and unjust 26 enrichment. Ten claims remain.

1           III.     LEGAL STANDARD

2           A.   Motion to Dismiss

3           In order to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, a pleading must contain “a short 4 and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P.
5 8(a)(2). In ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, “[a]ll well-pleaded allegations 6 of material fact in the complaint are accepted as true and are construed in the light most favorable
7 to the non-moving party.” Faulkner v. ADT Security Servs., Inc., 706 F.3d 1017, 1019 (9th Cir.
8 2013). To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain “sufficient factual matter, 9 accepted as true, to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face,” meaning that the court can 10 reasonably infer “that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 11 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

12
13           IV.    ALLEGED FACTS

14           The Court incorporates by reference the facts as pled in the complaint and provides the 15 following timeline and summary of alleged facts:

16           A.   Plaintiff’s Business and Acquisition of Grubb & Ellis

17           Plaintiffs purchased all rights and interest in the claims asserted in the Complaint from 18 Grubb & Ellis pursuant to the Parties’ April 5, 2012 Asset Purchase Agreement (“APA”) that was 19 approved by the bankruptcy court.

20           BGC Partners is a leading global brokerage company primarily servicing the wholesale 21 financial and property markets. Effective April 5, 2012, BGC Partners expanded its real estate 22 brokerage business by acquiring, through its indirect subsidiary, G&E Acquisition Company, 23 LLC, substantially all of the assets of Grubb & Ellis and its subsidiaries (including Grubb & Ellis 24 Affiliates), including a beneficial interest in and right to acquire the assets of Grubb & Ellis and 25 its subsidiaries. These assets included, among others, contracts, business opportunities, and leads 26 to provide management, leasing, sales and financial services, as well as the commissions and other 27 receivables, claims, causes of action, and other rights of recovery.

28

1 Previously, on February 20, 2012 (the “Petition Date”), Grubb & Ellis and its subsidiaries
2 filed a petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy 3 Code”). The purchase of substantially all of the assets of Grubb & Ellis by BGC Partners was 4 conducted in accordance with the provisions set forth in Section 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

5 Pursuant to a Second Amended and Restated Asset Purchase Agreement and a Transition 6 Services Supplement to the Asset Purchase Agreement between Grubb & Ellis and BGC Partners, 7 each dated April 13, 2012, BGC Partners purchased the beneficial rights associated with those 8 executory contracts to which Grubb & Ellis was a party, as well as all contracts for related claims, 9 including all beneficial rights under and any claims based on or arising in connection with Grubb
10 & Ellis’s Affiliate Agreement with the Nevada Group. Specifically, with respect to its operations 11 in Reno, Nevada, on April 1, 2010, Grubb & Ellis Affiliates entered into a “Commercial Real 12 Estate Brokerage Affiliation Agreement” (the “Nevada Agreement”) with the Nevada Group.

13 B. Defendant’s Alleged Unlawful Scheme and Conspiracy to Plunder Plaintiff’s Real 14 Estate Brokerage Assets

15 In June 2008, Mark Rose – who had resigned as Chief Executive Officer of Grubb & Ellis 16 only months earlier – became Chief Executive Officer of Avison Young. Avison Young had no 17 significant real estate brokerage or other services in the United States at the time. In 2009, under 18 Rose’s new leadership, Avison Young embarked upon a self-described “aggressive growth and 19 expansion strategy” and began acquiring real estate brokerage operations in the U.S. market and 20 opening others with brokers from its competitors. It opened its first U.S. office in Chicago in 2009, 21 followed by additional offices in, among other places, Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Boston, Dallas, 22 Houston, Los Angeles, Reno, New York City, and Pittsburgh. Defendants have carried out their 23 aggressive expansion strategy through unlawful means and to Plaintiffs’ detriment, including 24 targeting and stealing the operations, personnel, offices, and affiliates of Rose’s former company 25 for his new company, Avison Young. This also includes the alleged wrongful conversion of assets, 26 such as commissions and trade secrets related to the Nevada Group. This scheme was inspired and 27 devised by Rose, and directed and implemented by Pinjuv, Kupiec, Avison Young, AY-USA and 28 AY-Nevada, through its directors, officers and agents.

1                   C. Defendants Steal Plaintiff's Nevada Affiliate

2                   By way of background, Grubb & Ellis, through its subsidiary, Grubb & Ellis Affiliates, 3                   had contractual arrangements with a number of established real estate brokerage companies across 4                   the United States to provide real estate brokerage services under Grubb & Ellis's service and 5                   trademarks. Defendants tortiously conspired with the Nevada Group and others, to terminate the 6                   Nevada Group's contract with Grubb & Ellis Affiliates. These putative terminations occurred 7                   during the period when the "automatic stay" in bankruptcy was in effect and, as such, were illegal 8                   under the Bankruptcy Code.

9                   The Nevada Agreement provided, among other things, that the Nevada Group would 10                  participate, as an affiliate of Grubb & Ellis Affiliates, in cooperative marketing and referral
11                  programs. The parties agreed that, during the term of the Nevada Agreement, the Nevada Group 12                  received the right to use certain Grubb & Ellis services and trademarks in the conduct of its 13                  brokerage business. As a Grubb & Ellis affiliate, the Nevada Group also obtained access to 14                  confidential and proprietary information in certain databases which contained client and customer
15                  information pursuant to the Nevada Agreement. The Nevada Agreement was for a definite period 16                  of time – three years, until April 1, 2013 – and during that period of time, was terminable only for 17                  cause. If the Nevada Group terminated without cause at the end of the term, it was obligated to 18                  provide written notice to Grubb & Ellis Affiliates not less than one hundred fifty (150) calendar 19                  days in advance of the April 1, 2013 expiration date.

20                  The Nevada Agreement contained provisions regarding confidentiality and also required 21                  the Nevada Group to execute, which it did, a standard Confidentiality Agreement. The Nevada 22                  Agreement specifically provided that the Nevada Group could not compete or perform in 23                  competition with the business interest of Plaintiffs during the term of the Nevada Agreement.

24                  By letter dated March 1, 2012, without providing the requisite 150-day advance notice, the 25                  President of the Nevada Group, John Pinjuv, notified Grubb & Ellis Affiliates of the Nevada
26                  Group's intent not to renew the Nevada Agreement at the end of its present term and, in addition, 27                  that it would be "ceasing its operations effective March 5, 2012." The termination provided by the 28                  Nevada Group was not for cause pursuant to the Nevada Agreement. This termination of the 1 Nevada Agreement was wrongful because the plain terms of that agreement provide that it would 2 not expire until April 1, 2013. Additionally, at this time the bankruptcy court's automatic stay was 3 still in effect and barred the Nevada Group's termination of the Nevada Agreement. On March 5, 4 2012, Avison Young issued a Press Release stating that it was opening a new office in Reno, at 5 the same address previously occupied by the Nevada Group, with Pinjuv serving as its Managing 6 Director.

7 The Nevada Group was offered incentives by Avison Young to induce the Nevada Group 8 to breach its contract with Grubb & Ellis and to disclose trade secrets. The incentives offered to 9 the Nevada Group far exceeded industry standards. Rose, Kupiec, Pinjuv, Avison Young, AY-
10 USA and AY-Nevada were aware of the Nevada Group's ongoing obligations under the Nevada 11 Agreement and also were aware or should have been aware that the Nevada Group's purported 12 termination of the Nevada Agreement was barred by the "automatic stay" provision of the 13 Bankruptcy Code. Rose, Avison Young, AY-USA, and AY-Nevada also were aware, or should 14 have been aware, that their knowing and fraudulent receipt of assets belonging to the bankruptcy 15 estate constituted a criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. § 152(1) and (5). Avison Young on March 5, 16 2012 publicly boasted that "[p]rior to joining Avison Young, [Pinjuv] served as President of Grubb 17 & Ellis in Reno, specializing in investment properties in the Northern Nevada area."

18 D. Defendant's Wrongful Inducement of Grubb & Ellis Employees to Join AY-
19 Nevada

20 Defendants, as commercial brokerage entities and professionals within the industry, knew 21 that confidential information about clients, their contact information, and their preferences 22 constituted trade secrets and knew that individual brokers and employees have a duty of 23 confidentiality with respect to this information. Grubb & Ellis also had an office in Las Vegas.
24 Grubb & Ellis had contractual arrangements with individual licensed real estate brokers who are 25 licensed to perform brokerage services in Nevada, either as employees or as independent 26 contractors, in the Las Vegas office.

27 In late 2010, one year prior to his departure from Grubb & Ellis's Las Vegas office in 28 November 2011, Kupiec was engaged in communications with Avison Young representatives in

1 which he improperly provided confidential and proprietary information about Grubb & Ellis's Las 2 Vegas operations, as well as Grubb & Ellis's operations in Nevada generally, to Avison Young.
3 Specifically, Kupiec directly communicated to Avison Young and identified which Grubb & Ellis 4 affiliates and brokers should be targeted and recruited by Avison Young, including a direction that 5 Avison Young would need to assist in that recruitment because he had a one-year direct non-6 solicitation agreement. Rose communicated directly with Kupiec on these topics as well.

7 While still employed by Grubb & Ellis, Kupiec advised Avison Young representatives 8 which Las Vegas brokers Avison Young should target. Kupiec left Grubb & Ellis at the end of 9 2011 and within six months of his departure, the Nevada Group breached its affiliate agreement 10 and brokers and employees at Grubb & Ellis's Las Vegas office departed. Defendants have 11 engaged in a scheme to induce brokers working for Grubb & Ellis not only to terminate their 12 brokerage agreements, but also to steal trade secrets and to conceal business opportunities from 13 the firm when departing. The compensation packages offered by Avison Young to former Grubb 14 & Ellis brokers and employees were designed to induce them to breach their contracts with Grubb 15 & Ellis and to disclose trade secrets. Many of the brokers and employees induced by Defendants' 16 unlawful scheme were key employees of Grubb & Ellis. Plaintiffs purchased and assumed the 17 Nevada Agreement from Grubb & Ellis in the bankruptcy proceedings.

18 19 20 V. DISCUSSION

21 A. Plaintiffs' Standing

22 Defendants argue that Plaintiffs lack standing to pursue their claims because Debtor G&E, 23 the alleged predecessor in interest, rejected the underlying "Nevada Agreement," precluding 24 assignment to Plaintiffs.

25 1. Legal Standard

26 a. Executory Contracts

27 "An executory contract is one on which performance remains due to some extent on both 28 sides. More precisely, a contract is executory if the obligations of both parties are so unperformed

1 that the failure of either party to complete performance would constitute a material breach and thus 2 excuse the performance of the other.” In re Robert L Helms Construction & Development Co., 3 Inc., 139 F.3d 702, 705 (9th Cir. 1998) (internal citations and quotation marks omitted). “We agree 4 with the district court and hold that when the debtor secures rejection of a non-assumed executory 5 contract under section 365(g)(1), the date of breach is the day immediately prior to the filing of 6 the bankruptcy petition.” In re Aslan, 909 F.2d 367, 371 (9th Cir. 1990).

7 “Section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code “gives a trustee in bankruptcy the authority either to 8 reject or to assume executory contracts and unexpired leases. Ordinarily, a trustee may take either 9 of these actions without the consent of the other party to the contract or lease and notwithstanding 10 a provision in the applicable agreement that purports to restrict assignment. Once a contract has 11 been assumed, the trustee can assign it.” In re CFLC, Inc., 89 F.3d 673, 676 (9th Cir. 1996).

12 “(2) The trustee may assign an executory contract or unexpired lease of the debtor only if:
13 (A) the trustee assumes such contract or lease in accordance with the provisions of this section; 14 and (B) adequate assurance of future performance by the assignee of such contract or lease is 15 provided, whether or not there has been a default in such contract or lease.” 11 U.S.C. §365(f).

16 b. Property of the Estate

17 “(a) The commencement of a case under section 301, 302, or 303 of this title creates an 18 estate. Such estate is comprised of all the following property, wherever located and by whomever 19 held: (1) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c)(2) of this section, all legal or equitable 20 interests of the debtor in property as of the commencement of the case.” 11 U.S.C. §541(a)(1). The 21 estate’s property also includes “Any interest in property that the estate acquires after the 22 commencement of the case.” 11 U.S.C. §541(a)(7). Debtors and a bankruptcy estate are distinct 23 legal entities. 11 U.S.C. §541(a)(7) applies to property of the estate. See In re Doemling, 127 B.R.
24 954, 955 (W.D. PA 1991) (finding that a post-petition tort inflicted upon the debtors could not 25 constitute acquired property of the estate within the meaning of 11 U.S.C. §541(a)(7)).

26 As explained by the Doemling court, “The distinction between the property of the 27 individual debtor, as opposed to the property of the estate, finds further support in section 1306 of 28 the Bankruptcy Code. 11 U.S.C. § 1306. Section 1306 applies only to bankruptcy proceedings of

1 individuals and provides in pertinent part: ‘property of the estate includes, in addition to the 2 property specified in section 541 of this title . . . all property of the kind specified in such section 3 that the debtor acquires after the commencement of the case but before the case is closed, 4 dismissed, or converted to a case under Chapter 7 or 11 of this title, whichever occurs first.’ 11 5 U.S.C. § 1306(a)(1). Section 1306 thus implicitly acknowledges that the debtor is separate from 6 the estate and may acquire property interests independent of the estate.” In re Doemling, 127 B.R.
7 at 955 n. 1 (emphasis added).

8       Property under 11 U.S.C. §541(a)(1) includes “everything of value the bankrupt may 9 possess in alienable or leviable form when he files his petition,” including anything that “is 10 sufficiently rooted in the pre-bankruptcy past and so little disentangled with the bankrupts’ ability 11 to make an unencumbered fresh start that it should be regarded as property.” Segal v. Rochelle, 12 382 U.S. 375, 380 (1966). To be property of the estate, an interest must be “more than a hope or 13 expectation” but must constitute “a legal or equitable interest . . . as of the commencement of the 14 case.” In re Schmitz, 270 F.3d 1254, 1256-57 (9th Cir. 2001) (emphasis in original) (finding that 15 fishing rights established by regulations adopted post-petition did not constitute property of the 16 estate).

17                               2. Discussion

18       Defendants argue that as Plaintiffs’ standing depends entirely upon the assumption of rights 19 pursuant to the Asset Purchase Agreement, those rights must exist and have been validly 20 transferred for Plaintiffs to have a right to sue. Defendants argue that Plaintiffs cannot have 21 purchased and assumed the Nevada Agreement in the bankruptcy proceeding, as alleged, because 22 the bankruptcy estate rejected the agreement as part of the Notice of Rejection effective January 23 31, 2013. Defendants argue that in order to assume rights under the Agreement, the debtor needed 24 to have first assumed the Agreement, and then assigned it to Plaintiffs. Because this did not occur, 25 and in fact, cannot have occurred because the contract was rejected, BGC has no rights under the 26 contract. Moreover, Defendants argue that the Debtors’ rejection of the contract constituted a 27 material breach, eliminating any allegedly assigned interest.

1 Plaintiffs argue that the misconduct that gives rise to the contractual claims began in 2008-
2 2009 and had matured into causes of action before the APA was entered into. They were then 3 transferred to BGC “not as an assigned contract but as existing claims.” (emphasis in original, 4 Resp. Mot. at 11). Plaintiffs in their Response had argued that a post-petition breach of contract 5 by a non-debtor, which occurs before the debtor’s deadline to assume or reject a contract, gives 6 rise to a cognizable and assignable cause of action for breach even when the contract is later 7 rejected. However, at the hearing on June 9, 2017, Plaintiffs’ counsel declined to argue any legal 8 basis for a right to sue for claims that accrued post-petition; instead arguing that allegations of 9 post-petition misconduct provide support for claims that had fully accrued prior to the filing of the 10 petition.

11 The Court does not find a legal basis for standing for any claims that may have accrued
12 after the filing of the petition. Because the rejection of the Nevada Agreement as an executory 13 contract constituted a material breach by the Plaintiffs backdated to just before the petition, In re 14 Aslan, 909 F.2d at 371, Plaintiffs cannot sue for any alleged post-petition breach by the 15 Defendants. However, this does not mean that Plaintiffs cannot assert claims under the Nevada 16 Agreement or other contracts the rights to which were acquired in the APA. Where Plaintiffs have 17 adequately alleged a material breach prior to the petition date, such contracts do not constitute 18 executory contracts at all; they cannot be contracts in which “the obligations of both parties are so 19 unperformed that the failure of either party to complete performance would constitute a material 20 breach and thus excuse the performance of the other.” In re Robert L Helms Construction & 21 Development Co., Inc., 139 F.3d 702, 705 (9th Cir. 1998) (internal citations and quotation marks 22 omitted). These are not the kinds of potentially burdensome prospective obligations the bankruptcy 23 code seeks to alleviate, but rather fully accrued claims that have become property of the estate and 24 may be transferred pursuant to state law.

25 Because the Amended Complaint alleges post-petition tort and contract violations against 26 the debtor, Grubb & Ellis, rather than against the bankruptcy estate, any such claims that had not 27 fully accrued prior to the petition were not property of the estate, and could not have been 28 transferred pursuant to the APA. Therefore, in reviewing the claims below, the Court first

1 considers whether Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged that the claim accrued prior to the bankruptcy 2 petition.

3 Defendants had also argued that pursuant to the terms of the APA, Grubb & Ellis had not 4 validly transferred “executory contracts.” Because the Court does not find that Plaintiffs have 5 standing to pursue claims under any such executory contracts that had not fully accrued prior to 6 the petition date, the Court need not reach this question.

7 8 9 B. Violation of the Nevada Uniform Trade Secrets Act (“NUTSA”)

10 Count IX asserts a violation of the Nevada Uniform Trade Secrets Act against all 11 Defendants.

12 1. Legal Standard

13 “Generally, the elements required for pleading a cause of action for misappropriation of 14 trade secrets include: (1) a valuable trade secret; (2) misappropriation of the trade secret through 15 use, disclosure, or nondisclosure of use of the trade secret; and (3) the requirement that the 16 misappropriation be wrongful because it was made in breach of an express or implied contract or 17 by a party with a duty not to disclose.” Kaldi v. Farmers Ins. Exchange, 21 P.3d 16, 23 (Nev.
18 2001).

19 To establish that the information in question is a trade secret, a Plaintiff must show that the 20 asserted trade secret (1) derives independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being 21 generally known to, and not being readily ascertainable by proper means by the public or any other 22 persons who can obtain economic value from its disclosure or use; and (2) is a subject of efforts 23 that are reasonable under the circumstances to maintain its secrecy.

24 Misappropriation of a trade secret includes: disclosure or use of a trade secret of another 25 without express or implied consent by a person who, at the time of disclosure or use, knew or had 26 reason to know that his or her knowledge of the trade secret was acquired under circumstances
27 giving rise to a duty to maintain its secrecy or limit its use. Nevada Revised Statutes (“NRS”) 28 §600A.030(2)(c). When misappropriation of a trade secret is based on disclosure, the disclosure is

1 wrongful when it is made without the consent or permission of the trade secret owner and when 2 the disclosing party was under a duty to maintain the secrecy of the information. NRS 3 600A.030(2)(c).

4 “The determination of whether corporate information, such as customer and pricing 5 information, is a trade secret is a question for the finder of fact.” Frantz v. Johnson, 999 P.2d 351, 6 358 (Nev. 2000).

7 8 2. Discussion

9 As a preliminary matter, the Court finds that Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged claims that 10 had fully accrued prior to the petition date. Plaintiffs allege, “One year prior to his departure from 11 Grubb & Ellis’s Las Vegas office, [Defendant Joseph] Kupiec was engaged in communications 12 with [Defendant] Avison Young[’s] representatives in which he improperly provided confidential
13 and proprietary information about Grubb & Ellis’s Las Vegas operations, as well as Grubb & 14 Ellis’s operations in Nevada generally, to Avison Young. Specifically, Kupiec directly 15 communicated to Avison Young and identified which Grubb & Ellis affiliates and brokers should 16 be targeted and recruited by Avison Young, including a direction that Avison Young would need 17 to assist in that recruitment because he had a one-year direct non-solicitation agreement.
18 [Defendant Mark] Rose communicated directly with Kupiec on these topics as well.”

19 Plaintiffs allege that the trade secrets included “names of customers . . . detailed 20 information of commercial value about specific customer data, preferences about properties and 21 locations, purchasing histories, lease renewal dates, and on- going, developing leads that were 22 obtained through cultivation of hard-won, longstanding relationships with third-party customers 23 and potential customers.”

24 The Complaint alleges that John Pinjuv was the managing director of the Nevada Group, 25 who authored the letter of intent not to renew the Nevada Agreement on March 1, 2012, and 26 became the Managing Director of AY Reno a few days later. The Complaint further alleges that 27 “Defendants (or some of them) have engaged in a scheme to induce brokers working for Grubb & 28

1 Ellis not only to terminate their brokerage agreements, but also to steal trade secrets and to conceal 2 business opportunities from the firm when departing.”

3 The Amended Complaint asserts that the alleged conspiracy that included the theft of trade
4 secrets began “in 2009” after Mark Rose left Grubb & Ellis, joined AY, and embarked upon a 5 “aggressive expansion strategy . . . including by targeting and stealing the operations, personnel, 6 offices, and affiliates of Rose’s former company for his new company, Avison Young.”

7 Construed in the light most favorable to the Plaintiffs, these allegations plausibly allege 8 theft of trade secrets by all of the defendants prior to the filing of the Grubb & Ellis bankruptcy
9 petition in February 2012. The Amended Complaint directly alleges coordination among Kupiec, 10 Rose, and AY to divulge protected secrets prior to the petition date. Moreover, the Amended 11 Complaint alleges that just a few weeks after the petition, Pinjuv announced that the Nevada Group 12 would be breaking the Nevada Agreement and ceasing operations on March 5, 2012. On March 5, 13 2012, AY announced that it would be opening a new office in Reno, using the same address 14 previously occupied by the Nevada Group, with Pinjuv as managing director. This timeline raises 15 a strong inference of pre-petition conduct enabling the hasty transition.

16 Defendants further argue that the allegations as to trade secrets lack the requisite 17 specificity. Defendant cites no binding authority in asserting that Plaintiffs must identify customers 18 by name or list specific incentives offered to entice brokers. Among other relevant facts, Plaintiffs 19 allege collusion among the brokers, Kupiec, and the AY-Defendants to induce brokers, bound by 20 unambiguous contracts to protect valuable secrets, including detailed client information developed 21 through long-term cultivation, to renege on those contracts, shift employers, and divulge their 22 secrets, which they then did. These allegations, viewed in the light most favorable to Plaintiffs, 23 and viewed in light of the information asymmetry inherent in such claims, adequately plead a 24 violation of the Trade Secrets Act. See Kaldi, 21 P.3d at 23.

25 C. NUTSA Preemption

26 Defendants argue that counts 1-8, and 10-13, all claims other than the Nevada Trade 27 Secrets Act claim, are preempted by the Nevada Trade Secrets Act claim.

28 1. Legal Standard

1 Nevada law provides: “1. Except as otherwise provided in subsection 2, this chapter 2 displaces conflicting tort, restitutionary, and other law of this state providing civil remedies for 3 misappropriation of a trade secret. 2. This chapter does not affect: (a) Contractual remedies, 4 whether or not based upon misappropriation of a trade secret; (b) Other civil remedies that are not 5 based upon misappropriation of a trade secret; or (c) Except as otherwise provided in NRS
6 600A.035, criminal sanctions, whether or not based upon misappropriation of a trade secret.” NRS 7 §600A.090.

8 “In light of the plain language of NRS 600A.090 and the holding in Hutchison, we conclude 9 that the district court erred in relying on numerous tort and restitutionary causes of action that were 10 explicitly excluded by statute, as they all related to a misappropriation of a trade secret.
11 Specifically, the district court erred in awarding damages based on the following causes of action:
12 (1) misappropriation of confidential information, (2) breach of fiduciary duty, (3) intentional 13 interference with contractual relations, (4) intentional interference with prospective advantage, (5) 14 the tort of breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing,<sup>4</sup> (6) civil conspiracy, and (7) 15 unjust enrichment. These causes of action would normally be precluded by NRS 600A.090 because 16 they arose from a single factual episode, namely misappropriation of bidding and pricing 17 information.” Frantz v. Johnson, 999 P.2d 351, 465 (Nev. 2000).

18 “[W]e do not agree that the UTSA provides a blanket preemption to all claims that arise 19 from a factual circumstance possibly involving a trade secret. There may be future instances where 20 a plaintiff will be able to assert tort claims, including intentional interference with prospective 21 advantage and intentional interference with existing contract, that do not depend on the 22 information at issue being deemed a trade secret, and thus are not precluded by the UTSA.” Id. at 23 n.3.

24 25 2. Discussion

26 As a preliminary matter, pursuant to the express terms of the statute, “contractual remedies” 27 are not preempted by the statute. Thus claims 3 and 4 for breach of contract are not preempted. As 28 laid out below, the Court will grant the motion to dismiss claim 2 for Nevada RICO violations and

1 claims 5-7 for tortious breach of the implied covenant and claim 8 for conspiracy. The remaining 2 claims are (1) Tortious interference with contractual relationship; and (12) Conversion.

3 a. Claim 1: Tortious Interference

4 In this claim, Plaintiffs allege, “Defendants maliciously induced the Nevada Group to 5 breach the Nevada Agreement, without justification, by causing the Nevada Group to (a) terminate 6 the Nevada Agreement with Grubb & Ellis Affiliates in violation of the ‘automatic stay,’ (b) 7 improperly terminate the Nevada Agreement prior to the agreement’s April 1, 2013 end date and 8 without providing the requisite 150-day advance notice, (d) [sic] violate the non-competition 9 provisions of the agreement, and (e) improperly disclose trade secrets and confidential and 10 proprietary information in violation of the Nevada Agreement and Confidentiality Agreement 11 incorporated therein.”

12 The allegations in (a) and (b) cannot state a claim, as they necessarily accrued after the 13 filing of the petition. The allegations in (e) are preempted as they “depend on the information at 14 issue being deemed a trade secret,” Frantz v. Johnson, 999 P.2d at 465 n.3, and amount to “civil 15 remedies for misappropriation of trade secrets.” NRS 600A.090. There remains only (d), “violate 16 the non-competition provisions of the agreement” (emphasis added). The Amended Complaint 17 elaborates: “By setting up a competing office serving the same clients in the exact same real estate 18 market, the Defendants further maliciously induced the Nevada Group to breach the Nevada 19 Agreement’s non-competition provisions which prevented the Nevada affiliate from competing 20 with Grubb & Ellis during the term of the Nevada Agreement, i.e., until April 1, 2013.” The 21 Amended Complaint makes clear that (d) refers to the allegedly unlawful competition that occurred 22 after the petition, namely the total non-compliance with the affiliate agreement and the subsequent 23 direct competition by working with and being subsumed by AY Nevada. As such, this claim is 24 dismissed as Plaintiff’s lack standing, and the claim is preempted.

25 b. Claim 12: Conversion

26 Count XII, Conversion, alleges that “Defendants’ theft of the Nevada Group has resulted 27 in Defendants’ unauthorized assumption and control of contract rights, business opportunities 28 and trade secrets which belong to the Plaintiffs.”

1 Conversion is “a distinct act of dominion wrongfully exerted over another’s personal 2 property in denial of, or inconsistent with his title or rights therein or in derogation, exclusion, or 3 defiance of such title or rights.” It is “an act of general intent, which does not require wrongful 4 intent and is not excused by care, good faith, or lack of knowledge. Whether a conversion has 5 occurred is ... a question of fact for the jury.” M.C. Multi-Family Dev., L.L.C. v. Crestdale 6 Associates, Ltd., 193 P.3d 536, 543 (Nev. 2008).

7 In M.C. Multi-Family Dev., the Nevada Supreme Court applied the Ninth Circuit’s test in 8 Kremen v. Cohen, 337 F.3d 1024, 1030 (9th Cir. 2003), to determine whether a property right 9 exists for purposes of a conversion claim. “[A] property right exists when (1) there is an interest 10 capable of precise definition, (2) the interest is capable of exclusive possession or control, and 11 (3) the putative owner has established a legitimate claim to exclusivity. Applying this test, the 12 court in Kremen explained that property is a broad concept encompassing every intangible 13 benefit and prerogative susceptible of possession or disposition. Under Kremen, such rights 14 included the right to use of an Internet website domain name.” Id. (internal citations and 15 quotation marks omitted).

16 To the extent that it is based on the conversion of trade secrets, this claim is preempted 17 under NUTSA. The question remains whether the Amended Complaint has adequately pled 18 conversion of “contract rights” and “business opportunities.” The only potential pre-petition 19 allegation to which this might relate are the efforts to induce brokers to leave Grubb & Ellis for 20 Avison Young. Conversion means exercising dominion over a presently-existing property right of 21 another, to the exclusion of the other’s enjoyment of that right—it should not be understood to 22 encompass benefit from the breach of a contract, for which lies a remedy in contract or interference 23 with contract. Subsequent to a breach and termination of employment, neither the contract nor the 24 brokers themselves constituted “personal property” of Grubb & Ellis that could be converted. As 25 such, the only remaining substance of the conversion claim relates to trade secrets, and is 26 preempted under the NUTSA.

D. Tortious Breach of the Implied Covenant

1. Legal Standard

“Although every contract contains an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, an action in tort for breach of the covenant arises only “in rare and exceptional cases” when there is a special relationship between the victim and tortfeasor.” Insurance Company of the West v. Gibson Tile Company, Inc. 134 P.3d 698, 702 (Nev. 2012). “A special relationship is “characterized by elements of public interest, adhesion, and fiduciary responsibility.” Id. Examples of special relationships include those between insurers and insureds, partners of partnerships, and franchisees and franchisers. Each of these relationships shares “a special element of reliance” common to partnership, insurance, and franchise agreements. We have recognized that in these situations involving an element of reliance, there is a need to “protect the weak from the insults of the stronger” that is not adequately met by ordinary contract damages.” Id. The Nevada Supreme Court does not appear to have spoken on whether or not real estate broker and client constitutes such a special relationship.

In addition, we have extended the tort remedy to certain situations in which one party holds “vastly superior bargaining power.” Id. Examples include termination of an at-will salespersons employment contract. Aluevich v. Harrah’s, 6660 P.2d 986, 989 (Nev. 1983) (citing Fortune v. National Cash Register Company, 364 N.E.2d 1251 (Mass. 1977)). A warehouseman’s lien applied to a woman using a storage service by a large company that refused to delay selling her goods and furnishings. Mitchell v. Bailey & Selover, Inc. 605, P. 2d 1138 (Nev. 1980).

“To establish aiding and abetting in the civil context, a plaintiff must show (1) the primary violator breached a duty that injured the plaintiff, (2) the alleged aider and abettor “was aware of its role in promoting [the breach] at the time it provided assistance,” and (3) the alleged aider and abetter “knowingly and substantially assisted” the primary violator in committing the breach. Terrell v. Central Washington Asphalt, Inc., 168 F. Supp. 3d 1302, 1314 (D. Nev. 2016) (citing Dow Chem. Co. v. Mahlum, 114 Nev. 1468, 970 P.2d 98, 112 (1998). overruled in part on other grounds by GES, Inc. v. Corbitt, 117 Nev. 265, 21 P.3d 11, 15 (2001)).

2. Discussion

Defendants argue first that Plaintiffs have failed to allege a special relationship sufficient to support a claim for tortious breach. The Complaint describes The Nevada Group as “an affiliate” of Grub & Ellis, and describes the relationship as one in which Grub & Ellis provided services and permitted use of its trademark. As such, Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged a relationship sufficiently akin to the “franchiser-franchisee” relationship the Nevada Supreme Court has clearly identified as one of the special relationships that may support a claim for tortious breach. However, Plaintiffs have alleged no such special relationship with Kupiec. The Court is not persuaded that the relationship of “entrustment” involving trade secrets is of the type the Nevada Supreme Court identified containing “elements of public interest, adhesion, and fiduciary responsibility,” nor one of great power imbalance, such that tort liability would be warranted. Such a theory would render almost any management or executive relationship with an employer company sufficient to permit a tortious breach claim. Therefore, Count VI is dismissed.

As to Count VII, Defendants argue that without underlying liability there can be no aiding and abetting liability, and that the facts as pled are insufficient. As only the Nevada Group is potentially liable, and this claim is pled only against Kupiec and the Nevada Group, the relevant question is whether Kupiec aided and abetted the Nevada Group’s alleged breach. Plaintiffs have stated a plausible claim for Kupiec’s aiding and abetting liability. Plaintiffs assert that Kupiec was instrumental in orchestrating the alleged conspiracy to intentionally induce breaches of a contract plausibly characterized by the requisite special relationship.

As stated above, liability will extend only to those alleged breaches that occurred prior to the filing of the bankruptcy petition in February 2012. Thus the claims will only proceed if the Nevada Group’s breach and Kupiec’s aiding and abetting occurred prior to that date. Count V alleges, “The Nevada Group breached that duty by engaging in direct competition with Plaintiffs by joining Avison Young and by disclosing Plaintiffs’ trade secrets to Avison Young[.]” Thus the Amended Complaint makes clear that Plaintiffs are asserting a violation based on the postposition complete break with the affiliate agreement and subsequent joining of Avison Young, as well as the preempted trade secret violation. Therefore, Counts V through VII are dismissed.

1                   E. RICO

2                   Defendants argue that Plaintiffs have failed to plead sufficient specific facts to state a claim 3 for violation of the Nevada RICO Act (Count II).

4                   1. Legal Standard

5                   “[W]e . . . have a present concern that civil RICO actions be pleaded with sufficient 6 specificity because of the very serious consequences attached to the allegations of criminal conduct 7 that are the essence of this kind of law suit. Not only is a civil RICO defendant accused of 8 committing a criminal offense—which carries with it the potential for considerable social stigma—9 such a defendant is also confronted with the possibility of an adverse treble damages judgment.”
10 Hale v. Burkhardt, 764 P.2d 866, 869 (Nev. 1988).

11                   “Because the present civil RICO action, despite its fundamentally civil nature, (1) involves 12 pleading the commission of racketeering-related crimes and (2) permits the levy of serious punitive 13 consequences, the same degree of specificity is called for as in a criminal indictment or 14 information. A civil RICO pleading must, in that portion of the pleading which describes the 15 criminal acts that the defendant is charged to have committed, contain a sufficiently “plain, concise 16 and definite” statement of the essential facts such that it would provide a person of ordinary 17 understanding with notice of the charges” Id. “This means the complaint should provide 18 information as to “when, where [and] how” the underlying criminal acts occurred.” Cummings v.
19 Charter Hosp. of Las Vegas Inc., 896 P.2d 1137, 1141 (Nev. 1995).

20                   2. Discussion

21                   Plaintiffs’ RICO claim alleges the following:

22                   Defendants, in coordinating and implementing their wrongful actions to achieve the theft 23 of Plaintiffs’ Nevada affiliate, Plaintiffs’ broker agreements and its related commissions, 24 business, business opportunities and trade secrets, engaged in an “enterprise” as defined by 25 NRS § 207.380. The actions taken by the Defendants, in the course of stealing the Nevada 26 Group and related assets, from a period of, at the latest, October 10, 2010, through the 27 present date, constitute more than two “predicate acts” as defined by NRS § 207.30.
28 Specifically, Defendants’ predicate acts include, but are not limited to: (a) Theft of monies

1 owed pursuant to the Nevada Agreement; (b) Theft of multiple business deals Plaintiff had 2 in progress; (c) Theft of trade secrets; and (d) Theft of broker relationships.

3 Defendants argue that these claims are not pled with the required specificity, as they do not 4 allege “when, where, and how the underlying acts occurred. Defendants further argue that even if 5 the claim is pled with sufficient specificity, the claims of “theft” amount to a reiteration of the 6 allegations of tortious conduct and contract valuations that do not amount to predicate “crimes” as 7 required by NRS 207.360. Plaintiffs respond by reiterating the allegations in the RICO section of 8 the complaint, which amount to bare recitals of the general accusations and citations, without 9 provide sufficient details to constitute incidents of particular crimes. The Court finds that 10 Plaintiffs’ allegations do not amount to “definite” statements of the particular facts of the predicate 11 “crimes” of “theft.” The fact that none of the allegations of particular predicate crimes include any 12 indication of “when” they occurred is sufficient to merit dismissal.

13 14 F. Breach of Contract

15 Defendants’ only argument as to the breach of contract claims is that Plaintiffs lack 16 standing to sue. Therefore, the Court asks only whether breach plausibly occurred prior to the 17 bankruptcy petition date of February 20, 2012.

18 Count III of the Amended Complaint, Breach of Contract – Defendant Nevada Group, 19 alleges, “The Nevada Group breached the Nevada Agreement by improperly terminating the 20 agreement without providing the requisite notice and prior to the expiration of the term of the 21 Nevada Agreement, by refusing to perform under the Nevada Agreement for the remainder of the 22 Nevada Agreement’s term, by joining Avison Young to engage in direct competition with the 23 Plaintiffs in breach of the non-competition clause in the Nevada Agreement, and by disclosing 24 Plaintiffs’ trade secrets to Avison Young in violation of the Nevada Agreement and the 25 Confidentiality Agreement.” As with the tortious breach claim, all of the alleged misconduct in 26 this claim with the exception of the trade secret violation occurred after the bankruptcy petition, 27 and relates directly to the complete break with the affiliate agreement that occurred in March of 28 2012. However, contract claims cannot be preempted. As noted above, the Amended Complaint

1 plausibly alleges trade secret violations, incorporating contractual violations, preceding the 2 bankruptcy petition. Therefore, the claim may proceed on this ground.

3 Count IV alleges breach of contract against Defendant Kupiec, specifically that “Kupiec 4 breached his contractual obligation to Plaintiffs by, before and after joining AY-Las Vegas in 5 November 2011, soliciting Plaintiffs’ Las Vegas brokers, and inducing them to terminate their 6 agreements with the Plaintiffs in order to join Avison Young and by providing confidential and 7 proprietary information to Avison Young while still employed by Grubb & Ellis. Kupiec engaged 8 in direct communications with Avison Young regarding the recruitment of Grubb & Ellis brokers.
9 Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged that Kupiec breached his contract with regard to both proprietary 10 information and the recruitment of brokers prior to the February 20, 2012 bankruptcy petition.
11

12 G. Conspiracy

13 “An actionable conspiracy consists of a combination of two or more persons who, by some 14 concerted action, intend to accomplish an unlawful objective for the purpose of harming another, 15 and damage results from the act or acts.” Hilton Hotels Corp. v. Butch Lewis Productions, Inc., 16 862 P.2d 1207, 1210 (Nev. 1993). “The gist of a civil conspiracy is not the unlawful agreement
17 but the damage resulting from that agreement or its execution. The cause of action is not created 18 by the conspiracy but by the wrongful acts done by the defendants to the injury of the plaintiff.”
19 Eikelberger v. Tolotti, 96 Nev. 525, 528 n.1 (Nev. 1980).

20 Plaintiffs allege that Defendants entered into a conspiracy to unlawfully take Grubb & 21 Ellis’s commissions, personnel, offices, business, trade secrets, and business opportunities: “The 22 unlawful scheme and conspiracy described herein was inspired and devised by Rose and Kupiec, 23 and directed and implemented by Avison Young and AY-USA, through its directors, officers and 24 agents and carried out the scheme and conspiracy under Avison Young’s direction and control . . .
25 [The] conspiracy and overt acts in furtherance of their unlawful scheme have included, among 26 other things, tortiously inducing the Nevada Group to breach its contract in order to join Avison 27 Young; and inducing and assisting larceny by the Nevada Group by rewarding them – with full 28

1 knowledge or recklessness to the consequences – for disclosing and stealing business opportunities
2 and trade secrets that belonged to Grubb & Ellis.”

3 A conspiracy claim may be preempted under the NUTSA. See Frantz, 999 P.2d at 465.
4 Here again, the operative inquiry is whether Plaintiffs have adequately pled claims not rooted in 5 trade secrets that fully accrued prior to the petition date. The only claim proceeding that is not 6 rooted in trade secrets is the claim against Joseph Kupiec for breach of contract based upon 7 inducing brokers to leave Grubb & Ellis. While the Nevada Supreme Court has not directly 8 addressed the issue, the Court finds that it would not permit co-conspirator liability based only 9 upon underlying contract violations. To do so would effectively permit transforming contract 10 claims into tort claims with tort damages, without meeting the requirements of a tortious breach 11 of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. See Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton 12 Saudi Arabia Ltd., 869 P.2d 454, 461 (Cal. 1994) (declining to permit a claim for conspiracy to 13 interfere with contract).

14
15 VI. CONCLUSION

16 Accordingly,

17 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that [66] Motion to Dismiss is granted in part and denied in 18 part as follows: Counts III, IV, and IX, for breach of contract against Defendant Nevada Group, 19 breach of contract against Defendant Kupiec, and violation of the Nevada Trade Secrets Act 20 against all Defendants, respectively, may proceed. All other claims are dismissed.
